

Thank you for buying the BabyHawk Mei Tai. On this sheet you will find instructions for a front carry position and a back carry position.

Please use extreme caution and common sense while learning how to use your carrier. If possible have someone standing by while first trying your carrier. If that is not possible, please sit on a couch or bed until you feel comfortable putting your baby into these positions. As with anything, there is a learning curve to achieve the correct positions so that you and your baby are the most comfortable. It may take you a couple of tries until you are satisfied with the fit. If you have any questions please email me at info@babyhawk.com. For additional help and guidance please visit the following websites:

www.thebabywearer.com

www.mamatoto.org

Disclaimer: You are ultimately responsible for the welfare of your child. By purchasing this product you acknowledge that Babyhawk.com/Robyn Collar accept no responsibility for injury/damage due to the use/misuse of this product.

Wash only on the delicate cycle/cold water. Line dry or machine dry low heat. For the best results place the carrier in a lingerie bag or pillowcase to avoid the straps getting twisted around the washer, you may want to iron the carrier on the cotton setting. All of our fabrics are prewashed, though some bleeding may still occur. Please wash the carrier by itself to avoid damage to other items for the first couple of washes.

front carry

1. Tie short straps in a square knot around your waist snugly like an apron. Make sure the pattern you want facing out is against your knees.

2. Hold your baby to your chest and pull the carrier up between his legs and over his body.

3. Throw the straps over each shoulder. While holding your baby with one arm reach behind you and grasp both straps. Reach behind you with your other hand and grab the other strap.

4. Cross the straps and check to make sure they are not folded or twisted.

5. Bring both straps around your waist to the front of your body and tie in a square knot under the baby's butt or behind his back.

back carry

1. Tie the short straps around your waist with the body hanging behind you like an apron.

2. While leaning forward, slide the baby from your hip onto your back. Pull the carrier up between the baby's legs and put the straps over your shoulders.

3. Grasping the straps, either cross them in front of your chest or bring them down and under your arms, like a backpack.

4. Bring the straps around your sides and tie them in a square knot under the baby's butt.